NOTICE OF INVENTORS

It should be clearly understood that a Disclosure Document is not a patent application, nor will its receipt date in any way become the effective filing date of a later filed patent application. A Disclosure Document may be relied upon only as evidence of conception of an invention and a patent application should be diligently filed if patent protection is desired.

Your Disclosure Document will be retained for two years after the date it was received by the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) and will be destroyed thereafter unless it is referred to in a related patent application filed within the two-year period. The Disclosure Document may be referred to by way of a claim of transmittal in a new patent application or by a reference made in a pending application. Unless it is desired to have the USPTO retain the Disclosure Document beyond the two-year period, it is not required that it be referred to in the patent application.

The two-year moratorium period should not be considered to be a "grace period" during which the inventor can wait to see whether patent application without possible loss of benefits. It must be recognized that in establishing priority of invention an inventor or inventor's attorney filing a Disclosure Document must usually also establish expenses in completing the invention or in filing the patent application after the filing of the Disclosure Document.

If you are not familiar with what is considered to be "patents in connection with" or "invention to protect" under the Patent Law or if you have other questions about patent matters, you are advised to consult with an attorney or agent registered to practice before the USPTO. The publication, Attorneys and Agents Registered to Practice Before the United States Patent and Trademark Office, is available from the Bureau of Inventive & Discoveries, Washington, DC 20462. Patent attorneys and agents are also listed in the telephone directory of most major cities. Also, many large cities have associations of patent attorneys which may be consulted.

You can also run into trouble if you publish or use in the United States or publication of your invention anywhere in the world more than one year prior to the filing of a patent application on that invention will prohibit the granting of a patent on it.

Documents of Importation which have been introduced and witnessed by person under bonded on other account of release which may also be used to conduct party.

There is a nationwide network of Patient and Treatment Dependency Units (PTDU), which have collections of patient and patient-related information available to the public, including internet access to USPTO records. Publications such as General Information Concerning Patent Information at the PTDL, as well as the USPTO Web site at www.uspto.gov. To find out the location of the PTDL closest to you, please consult the complete listing of PTDLs and locations on the USPTO Web site or in any issue of the General Gazette, or call the USPTO's General Information Center at 1-800-78-5110 (1-800-78-5110) or 703-285-4599. To learn more information from a PTDL and member, you may wish to contact a PTDL prior to visiting to learn about its collection, services, and hours.
